"Reimagining the Public Library in a Post-Recession Economy"

Friday, February 17, 2012

Harold Washington Library Center

400 S. State St.

Chicago, IL

(312) 747-4300

Corinne Hill, interim director of the Dallas Public Library and incoming director of the Chattanooga Public Library, will address how Dallas Public library is rethinking everything as it transitions out of the Great Recession of 2008. Mobile technology allows staff to deliver service at point of contact, innovation incubator provides opportunities for assistance to those wanting to start a microbusiness, and a renewed commitment to library services in a digital age has staff focused on the customer's experience.
